MORNA.

Morna's wanton lip is press'd,
Morna's fragile form caress'd,
By many a one—
And on Morna's icy breast,
Many another brow may rest,
Than mine alone.

Morna's melting eye will beam,
'Twill emit its wonted gleam,
And I away—
Yet shall Morna, in my breast,
Live in every beauty drest,
Where'er I stray.

Fare-thee-well—but never more,
Tho' my heart must still adore,
Will I kneel,
Prov'd thee false, yet may'st thou ne'er
Know the pangs of deep despair
Which I feel.

Like a meteor of the night,
Flash across the aching sight;
Yet unlike it too,
Leave no ray of light behind,
As a beacon to the mind,
Where to follow you.

Ignus fatuus to the sight,
While all else is rob'd in night,
Still thou leadest on
To the precipice's verge,
When beneath us breaks the surge,
We gaze, and are undone.

SONG.

TUNE—MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS.

To Mr. ——, of Indiana.

Oh! long may the pleasures that youth can impart,
Entwine their soft blessings around thy gay heart;
Long may it be ere thy bosom shall know,
That joy is accomp'nied with sorrow below.
O! think not, tho' far from thy presence I be,
My heart, dear ALONZO, is never with thee;
Nor lightly believe that LEANDER can prove,
Or wanting in friendship, or fickle in love.

To wander in fancy oft mem'ry delights,
Where together we rambled the happiest wights,
Where sheen was the moment as mirth crown'd the day,
As lightly and smoothly it glided away:
Then, oh! may the pleasures that youth can impart,
Entwine their soft blessings around thy gay heart:
Long may it be ere thy bosom shall know,
That joy is accomp'nied with sorrow below.

LEANDER ALEXALIS.

THE MISANTHROPE.

Beneath yon nightshade dark, whose flagging leaf
Bends to the sullen breeze which moans it by,
Lies one, whose every hour was ting'd with grief,
Who knew no pleasure till he came to die.

His morning rose in clouds—his noon-tide was
Clad in the dimmest garb, and not a gleam
(On his wrapp'd spirit in its moody night,)
Of sunshine bent on him its glorious beam.

He lived as one who was not of the world;
He died as he had lived, in storm and night—
The haunted horrors of the cave had hurl'd,
From her own throne, bright Reason's living light.

He sought each horrid feature of the earth;
His couch, the heather in the lone wood's side—
With his own hand, he spurns his spirit forth,
And in the frenzy of his soul—he died.

MAD POET.

PETRARCH AND LAURA.

Go, plaintive breeze, to Laura's flowery bier,
Heave the warm sigh, and shed the tender tear;
There to the awful shade due homage pay,
And softly thus address the sacred clay:

Say, envied earth, that dost those charms enfold,
Where are those cheeks, and where those locks of gold?
Where are those eyes which oft the muse has sung?
Where those sweet lips and that enchanting tongue?

Ye radiant tresses, and thou nectar'd smile,
Ye looks, that might the melting skies beguile,
You robb'd my soul of rest, my eyes of sleep,
You taught me how to love, and how to weep.

Moral and Religious.

THE PATH OF MAN.

The most sensible motive to abate the passions is death. The tomb is the best course of morality: Study avarice in the coffin of the miser; this is the man who accumulated heap upon heap, riches upon riches—see a few boards enclose him, and a few square inches of earth contain him.—Study ambition in the grave of that enterprising man; see his noble designs, his extensive projects, his boundless expeditions, are all shattered and sunk in this fatal gulph of human projects! Approach the tomb of the proud man, and there investigate pride: See the mouth that pronounced lofty expressions condemned to eternal silence; the piercing eye that convulsed the world with fear, covered with a midnight gloom; the formidable arm that distributed the destinies of mankind, without motion or life! Go to the tomb of the nobleman, and there study quality: behold his magnificent titles, his royal ancestors, his flattering inscriptions, his learned genealogies, are all gone, or going to be lost in the same dust! Study voluptuousness at the grave of the voluptuous; see his senses are destroyed; his organs broken to pieces, his bones scattered at the grave's mouth, and the whole temple of sensual pleasures subverted from its foundation.

THE PURSUIT OF VIRTUE.

There is but one pursuit in life which it is in the power of all to follow, and all to attain. It is subject to no disappointments, since he that perseveres, makes every difficulty an advancement, and every contest a victory; and this is the pursuit of virtue. Sincerely to aspire after virtue, her wages is to receive them. Those that seek her early, will find her before it is late; her reward is also with her, and she will come quickly. For the breast of a good man is a little heaven commencing on earth; where the Deity sits enthroned with unrivalled influence, every subjugated passion, "like the wind and storm, fulfilling his word."

Extract from a Sermon of the Rev. Dr. Wilmer.

To hold sentiments hostile to Christianity is one thing—every man has a right to think for himself upon his own peril and responsibility—but when he undertakes to teach them to others, and endeavours to sap the faith and hope and consolations of his neighbour, I know not by what law of charity he can excuse his conduct. Supposing for a moment that Christianity were a fable, yet its veriest enemies have admitted that it holds out the purest morality, the surest motives to resignation under calamity, the highest sources of consolation and hope that were ever known. Suppose that the believers in christianity are a poor deluded, ignorant people; still the question occurs; 'Why rob us of our hopes?' If it be a delusion, it is a happy delusion. Imagination makes things real; why then rob us of our real treasure?—Here we are shipwrecked on the ocean of life; here we are buffeting its various ills, and we find religion to be the only bark which rides in every storm—the only anchor that supports our hopes. But lo! the spectre comes to our relief: he bids us abandon this as only an imaginary refuge: he bids us shake off our fears and doubts. And what does he offer as a substitute? Ask him but that question, and you at once confound him. What will he give us in place of our hopes? Take away religion, and what have we to keep us from sinking under the waves of adversity and sorrow—what comfort when we kneel at the dying bed of one tender and beloved—what light to shed upon that ocean vast and dark, which spreads before us, when we are obliged to launch away upon its bosom?—Who steals my purse, steals trash; but he who robs me of this sweet hope, robs me of that which is dearer than the riches of Golconda and Peru. Allowing it to be a false hope, it does not less show the value of it to one who confides in it, nor the cruelty of him who would rob him of it. Even supposing religion to be false, it has the advantage in this life in point of virtue and happiness; and at the bar of heaven, certainly the christian will fare as well as the unbeliever. But supposing christianity to be true at last, how dreadful is the state of the comparison against the unbeliever! The bare possibility of its being true, is enough to give torment to a reasonable man who is not provided for that contingency. So that our rock is stronger than theirs, our enemies being judges.

MAXIMS.

You will never be thought to talk too much, when you talk well; and always speak too much, when you speak ill.

We ask advice, but we mean approbation.

FORCE OF HABIT.

OLDYS, the Historian, having been for several years in the Fleet Prison, had contracted such habits and connections there, that when he was at length enlarged, he made it a frequent practice to spend his evenings there, and lodge with some friend all night. Rapping at the door one night, rather late, the keeper reprimanded him for giving him such constant trouble, adding that "though he had a great regard for him, yet if he kept such hours in future, he must be under the necessity of locking him out."

From Bourdaloue's Sermons.

Duties of a Mother.—Surely the mother is a much more important character than it generally imagined. To whom are we to look for improvements? for such improvements as the world has never seen? Is it to men? to those whose habits are fixed; whose characteristics are consolidated? No; it is to the rising generation, to children, to babes, to sucklings. And who has the principal influence in forming the habits and characters of these? The mother; she who is with them, and is scarcely removed from them by night or by day; she who imparts to them her manners, her habits, her language, her modes of thinking, her opinions, her prejudices, her virtues, I had almost said, her very soul itself. Surely the mother has more influence in forming the rising generation than is possessed by any other character; more than is possessed by man, with all his authority, with all his laws, with all his arms, with all his splendid literary institutions. Though the station of the mother is indeed, subordinate, as respects the father, it is infinitely important. Though her station is subordinate, yet, in a great measure, she carries in her heart, and holds in her hand, the destinies of the world. It is impossible that mankind should be improved to any considerable degree and extent, without a corresponding improvement of mothers. Here and there, individuals may arise and shine, as they have done from the beginning of time; but improvements will be exceedingly limited, unless mothers are improved. And even with regard to the most distinguished individuals, who have enlightened and astonished the world, it is probable that the mother has had greater influence in forming their characters, than has been generally supposed. Who can tell how much her efforts may have conduced to give such a tone and direction to their minds, and an influence upon their whole succeeding conduct? All the future Bacons, Lockes and Newtons; all the future Baxters, Edwardses and Dwights, that are yet to arise and enlighten the world, will owe their influence, in a greater or less degree, to the mother. From her lips, they will learn to articulate their own names. From her, they will learn to walk, to think, to pray. She, who is truly an cellent mother, is one of the richest boons of Heaven.

We are assured by the voice of inspiration, that a child left to himself, bringeth his mother to shame. But why does an ungoverned and froward child bring shame upon his mother, more than upon his father? Is it not because the mother has a peculiar obligation to train up her offspring to obedience and virtue?

THE JUGGLERS DETECTED.

Two adventurers of the lower class, seeing the favour which the Franks enjoyed with the Sultan, Selim III. who died in 1807, and how very easy he was of access, resolved, if possible, to profit by the liberality of this munificent prince; and success appeared to them easy, if they could but present him with some novelty; no matter how strange or ridiculous their invention might be, provided they could make it pass for European. After devising and rejecting various plans to make the Sultan draw his purse-strings, they at last hit upon the following scheme:—They caused a report to be spread, that a stranger had recently arrived in the city, bringing with him a wonderful bear, who could play extremely well upon the piano-forte. Gossip fame soon spread the news; and the Sultan gave orders that the bear should be brought to exhibit its wonderful talents in his sublime presence. Accordingly, at the appointed hour, the bear and his leader, rejoicing in what they considered the certain success of their scheme, took the road to the seraglio. Being introduced into the interior apartments, they were conducted into one, where, concealed behind Venetian blinds, all the ladies of the haram were waiting the arrival of the Sultan, that the wonderful spectacle might begin. Their impatience was soon gratified; his highness arrived, and the moment he entered, he was observed to regard Bruin very attentively. Animated with the hope of pleasing the royal spectator, our bear performed wonders; he danced caressed his master, and played a variety of tricks; to which the Sultan paid great attention. At last came the great trial of Bruin's powers; he was ordered by his master to play. Raising himself on his hind-legs, he performed, with his fore-paws, a piece of music in the best style; and captivated the Sultan so completely, that he eagerly asked the owner of this wonderful animal to set a price upon him. This unexpected proposal threw Bruin into great confusion; and it increased when he found that his master, fearing lest an abrupt refusal should discover the trick, appeared inclined to come to terms: "Pray," whispered the bear, while he appeared to caress his leader, "do not leave me here!" but the caresses which he gave his master made the Sultan more eager to purchase him. At last, the pretended owner thought to put an end to a scene, which he plainly perceived Bruin could not sustain much longer, by demanding an exorbitant price for him. "Count the sum required," cried the magnificent Selim, "and take this animal to my menagerie." The first part of the order was instantly obeyed by the khasnadar; and the other officers approached the bear, to fulfil the second part of it.

Till now, our animal had behaved with wonderful gentleness; but the moment was arrived when he found it necessary to show that he possessed all the fierceness of his species. Entrenching himself in the angle of the apartment which was opposite to the door, he waited impatiently till he saw it open; when suddenly raising himself upon his hind-legs, he rushed out, followed by his leader. No one offered to stop him, because they thought his master pursued in order to bring him back. One might suppose, that the Sultan Selim would have been sufficiently exasperated to have set a price upon the heads of the two impudent knaves; but having from the moment he saw the bear, penetrated the trick, the only revenge which he determinated to take, was to give them a hearty fright in return for the insult they had offered.

A Receipt to make a fourth-proof Dandy.

BY A LADY.

Take a brainless and beardless boy, about eighteen years of age; stuff him with nine ounces of variety, twelve ounces of double-refined conceit, twenty-five lbs. of pure pride, and three grains of common sense; if his noddle will bear it, steep him five hours in a tub of liquid presumption; then dry him—dress him up with a bell-crowned hat, having an half-inch brim, four neck cloths and a full pad round his throat, a light white jacket four inches long, a pair of well-braced corsets, a short waisted, tight-buttoned, fan-tail frock coat, a pair of large bag trowsers, moderately covering his breast, a pair of white kid gloves, a well varnished crooked cane, a segar in his mouth, and a twelve inch watch chain, with a key and five seals—in case the unfortunate creature is not worth a real watch, a dumb one, or a neat little book in the fob will answer every purpose. Having, by this process, completed the figure, brush it up, praise it, and flatter it, then let it loose in the street, and it will be as conspicuous as most dandies are.

Literary.

Messrs E. Bliss and E. White, of New-York, have made arrangements with Mr. Joseph Delaplaine of Philadelphia, to continue the publication of his "Repository of Portraits and lives of Eminent Men,"—and are preparing the fourth half volume for the press.

The first volume of the "Life of General Green," by Judge Johnson, of South Carolina, has issued from the press at Charleston. The work will be in two volumes of about 500 pages each, and embellished with numerous engravings, price ten dollars.

Wilson's Ornithology.—A second edition of this splendid American work, is now in the press in this city, with many new plates and additions to the ornithology of our country. The work, it is said, will be fully equal, in every respect, to the former edition.

New Work on South America.—Mr. B. Irvine has issued a prospectus of a work, which he intends publishing by subscription, entitled "A compendious view of the Independent States, lately Spanish provinces, in Mexico and South America."

The London Literary Gazette of 2d February, gives the following particulars of the hero of the new novel, entitled "The fortunes of Nigel," by the author of Waverly: He was the founder of Herriot's Hospital, one of the richest at Edinburgh.—His name was George Herriot, and he was jeweller to King James the VI. Herriot was the son of a goldsmith in Edinburgh; being bred to his father's business, he was appointed, in the year 1597, goldsmith to the queen of James, and soon after constituted goldsmith and jeweller to the king himself, with a right to all the profits and emoluments of that lucrative office. Upon the accession of James to the English throne, Herriot followed the court to London.—By assiduous attention to business, he had become eminent and rich. He furnished jewels to Prince Charles, afterwards Charles I. when he went to the court of Spain in 1623. These jewels were never paid for by James; but when Charles I. succeeded to the throne the debt to Herriot was allowed to his trustees in part of their purchase money of the Barony of Broughton, then crown lands, in the neighborhood of Edinburgh. These lands are now part of the foundation of this hospital, for the maintenance, relief, and bringing up of poor and fatherless boys, freemen's sons of the town of Edinburgh, the revenue of which is upwards of 5000*l.* per annum, and is rapidly increasing.

A supplement to Ancient Oriental History, which is expected to throw great light on the antiquities of Chaldea, Canaan, as well as on the sacred writings, particularly the books of Job, Genesis, and Chronicles, is prepared for publication by Mr. Landseer.

The forthcoming volume of Barry Cornwall is to comprise "The Flood of Thessaly," "the Girl of Province," and "the Letters of Boccacio to his Mistress," besides minor poems. The first is a Greek, and the second a French Tale, intended to commence a series of national stories, to be told in the poetry of this sweet and justly po[pular] lar writer. The last relates several facts in the early life of the great Novelist, not very generally known.

Mr. Bernard Barton has in the press a new volume of poems, under the name of the "Napoleon, and other poems." It is expected to appear in March.

The Ninth Number of M. Guizot's French translation of Shakspeare has been duly appeared in Paris; it contains the [ac]count to the of Henry IV. and the Merry Wives of Windsor. Among the newest French publications there is also a Collection [of] Works of Foreign Dramatic Poets, [and] edited by various individuals distinguished in the literary world. M. M. de Barante and Guizot are the translators of Schiller and Shakspeare.

The Renegade, a new novel, by [the] count d'Aulnoncourt, author of the Re[cluse] is announced for publication in the [city] of January, but had not yet reached [us] the beginning of February. Persons who have seen the MS. (says a French [paper] consider this new production as even [more] original and interesting than the Re[cluse], and as one of those bold compositions which form an era in literature.

THE ODD FAMILY.

In the reign of King William the Third there resided at Ipswich a family, which from the number of peculiarities belonging to it, was distinguished by the name of the odd family. Every event remarkably good or bad happened to this family on an odd day of the month, and every member had something odd in his or her person, manner, and behaviour—the very letters in their Christian names always happened to be an odd number. The husband's name was Peter, and his wife's Rubah; they had seven children, all boys, viz. Solomon, Roger, James, Matthew, Jonas, David and Ezekiel. The husband had but one leg, his wife but one arm, Solomon was born blind of the left eye, and Roger lost his sight by accident. James had his left ear bit off by a boy in a quarrel, and Matthew was born with only three fingers on his right hand. Jonas had a stump foot, and David was humpbacked. All these, except David were remarkably short, while Ezekiel was six feet one inch high when but 19. The stumplooted Jonas and the humpbacked David got wives of fortune, but no girls in the borough would listen to the addresses of their brothers. The husband's hair was as black as jet, and the wife's remarkably white, yet the children's hair was red. The husband was killed by accidentally falling into a deep pit in the year 1710; and his wife, refusing all kind of sustenance, died five days after him. In the year 1703, Ezekiel enlisted as a grenadier, and altho' he was afterwards wounded in 23 places, he recovered. Roger, James, Matthew, Jonas and David, it appears by the Church Register, died in different places, and were buried on the same day, in the year 1715; and Solomon, and Ezekiel were drowned together, in crossing the Thames, in the year 1793.

Some extracts from the Blue Laws of New-England.

No food or lodging shall be afforded to a quaker, adamite, or other heretic.—No one shall run on the Sabbath-day, or walk in his garden, or elsewere, except reverently to and from meeting.—No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep house, cut hair, or shave, on the sabbath-day.—No woman shall kiss her child on the sabbath or fasting days.—A debtor in prison, swearing he has no estate, shall be let out and sold to make satisfaction.—No gospel minister shall join people in marriage; the magistrates only shall join in marriage, as they may do it with less scandal to Christ's church.—When parents refuse their children convenient marriages the magistrate shall determine the point.—A man that strikes his wife shall pay a fine of ten pounds; a woman that strikes her husband shall be punished as the court directs.—No man shall court a maid in person, or by letter, without first obtaining the consent of her parents; five pounds penalty for the first offence, ten pounds for the second, and for the third, imprisonment during the pleasure of the court. Married persons must live together or be imprisoned.

The shrewd Fortune-teller.—Some young ladies taking a walk were accosted by a gipsey woman, who, for a small reward, very politely offered to shew them their future husbands' faces in a pool of water that stood near. Such an offer was too good to be refused, and, on paying the stipulated sum, the ladies hastened to the water, each in anxious expectation of getting a glance of the "beloved object;" but, lo! instead of beholding the "form and face" they so fondly anticipated, they were surprised to see their own rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes glancing from below. "Sure you are mistaken, woman," exclaimed one of them, "for we see nothing but our own faces in the water." "Very true, mem," replied the sagacious fortune-teller, "but these will be your husbands' faces when you are married."

Extract of a letter from on board the Franklin, 74, dated Rio Janeiro, Dec. 4, 1821, to a gentleman in Baltimore.

"No doubt ere this, you will have heard of the surrender of Lima to the patriots.—The Vice Roy of Lima is at present in Rio; he was displaced by the people, and is indebted to the exertions of captain Ridgley, for his escape, which he has acknowledged to commodore Stewart, who waited on him. Cochrane's squadron are in a dreadful state—the men deserting and dissatisfied, not receiving any pay for the last nine months. The Regent of this place has been called home by the Cortes of Portugal, he is quite a favourite with the people; they wish to make him their king; he will leave this place in March. The negroes here are drove about the streets like our cattle for sale. They have houses where they are driven to when they land from Africa, where they are fattened, and where they brush and oil them to make them look well. Lord Cochrane's vessel was loaded with wheat and dry goods, and so anxious was he to be the first at market after Lima's fall, he stood close in, and his vessel struck and went down. He ventured to go to a port to the leeward of Lima, and to send his property to that place. Commodore Hardy's demands upon Lord Cochrane were immediately complied with, and the vessel given up. The writer declares the Franklin to be an excellent ship for sailing—that when in company with the Dolphin, and heavily laden they were compelled to shorten sail for fear of losing her tender. Only one man has been lost, who fell from the yard arm overboard."

From St. Domingo.—A letter has been received at Boston from Aux Cayes, via St. Thomas, dated March 9, which notices the landing of a body of French troops at Samana, from Martinique.

It appears from this letter that about 4 or 500 French troops had landed from the fleet, and a skirmish ensued between them and the guard (about 20 men) left by Boyer on his way to St. Domingo. They were driven out of the town, and the commandant collected from 100 to 150 troops that were scattered about the country; but the enemy proving superior despatches were sent to Gen. Larivier, who was stationed 10 leagues from Samana, claiming his support. In the mean time the French plundered two plantations of the negroes, carried off every thing of value, and destroyed a small village in the neighbourhood. General Larivier arrived with 1000 men, at the moment the French were embarking; a few rounds were fired, and several on both sides killed and wounded. After they got on board, the frigates approached and bombarded the place, which was entirely destroyed, and several officers and men killed and wounded, among the latter was the general.

It was reported at Aux Cayes that Boyer had despatched a vessel for Martinique, to inquire into the matter. The sensation against the French inhabitants at Aux Cayes was very great, and it was supposed they would all be imprisoned.

An embargo was laid at Aux Cayes, which has since been revoked as respects American and English vessels.

In consequence of the late warlike demonstration at Samana, by a French fleet from Martinique, the failure of which is already known to the public, the Captain of the squadron, Martinieu, has thought it necessary to address a letter on the subject to the governor of Havana, explaining his views; in which he distinctly admits, that the landing on the island was "for the purpose of re-instating the royal authority of Spain, and to form a centre of re-union for the faithful subjects of his Catholic Majesty; or at least an asylum for those inhabitants who might be obliged to abandon their property." In justification of this extraordinary proceeding, the French commander states, that he had been called on by the inhabitants, whom he represents to have been in great distress, for protection.

Baltimore, April 15.—Capt. Baker, who arrived at this port from St. Thomas, states, that three days previous to his sailing, the schooner America, Capt. Graves, arrived there, who says, that on the 27th of March, as he was weighing anchor in the harbour of St. Barts, a small boat came alongside and boarded his vessel, when the marauders snapped several muskets or pistols at the crew of the America, one of which went off and unfortunately killed one of the crew named Edward Hammond. The ball passed through his body and he expired immediately.

LAW.—The National Advocate of New-York, gives the following report of a trial which took place in the court of sessions in that city.

Charles Gilman and Wm. Hopkins were convicted of an assault and battery on an officer and making a disturbance in the Circus. The recorder in passing sentence, took occasion to observe that citizens were frequently in error as to the extent of the rights which they claimed in a theatre or place of amusement. The ticket which you purchase gives you the privilege of a seat to witness the performance, and you are at liberty to express your pleasure or disapprobation at the exhibition in the customary way, by applause or by hissing; but this only is done in a proper manner, so as not to disturb the audience; and there must be limits to this applause or disapprobation, or the eccentricities and other whims of individuals may make the theatre a scene of riot and confusion, and those who come to be amused may be denied the gratification. When it is apparent that the audience is disturbed, or when quarrels, riots or confusion ensue, the managers are as much authorized to turn the offenders out of doors as they would in a private house, where a person forfeits his rights by bad conduct.

Italy.—Letters from Naples of the 5th February state, that a band of conspirators, principally men known by their dishonorable lives; persons who had escaped from justice, and among whom a person of respectable rank in life could not be found, had, with the aid of a secret society, formed the plan of massacreing, in one night, every respectable person in Palermo, holding a public situation. The 12th of January was fixed for carrying the project into execution. On that night, the conspirators where to repair to the Grand Theatre, were the Civil and Military Authorities, and all the distinguished personages of Palermo would be assembled to celebrate the King's birth day. After sacrificing their victims, the conspirators were to repair to the fortress, hoist the tri-coloured flag, and proclaim the American Constitution. It is said that they calculated on the assistance of the Spaniards, and particularly of such of the Italian carbonari as had taken refuge in Spain. All the details of this conspiracy having been communicated to Cardinal Gravina, Archbishop of Palermo, by one of the conspirators, the Neapolitan Police, assisted by the Austrian military prevented the meditated massacre. A great number of persons were arrested; some have been shot and others sent to Naples.

Brazil.—Accounts have been received from Pernambuco, that several violent European royalists had been massacred in the Brazils, and that a general opinion prevailed there, that the inhabitants would soon declare themselves independent of Portugal. From the present state of public opinion in Brazil and Mexico, we expect nothing else than the entire expulsion of the royalists from the whole of South America, and the establishment of governments similar to that now existing in Columbia.

From Havana.—Capt. O'Bryan, arrived at New-York from Havana, says it was reported there, a few days before he sailed, that the Spanish government had sent out a vessel of war from Cadiz to the Bay of Mexico, with orders to capture all vessels trading with La Vera Cruz, and the other colonies. It was also said that the above cruizer had captured several English and French vessels. A Hamburg ship had been robbed off Matanzas, of specie to the amount of 36,000*l.* sterling.

Extract of a letter, dated Havana, April 3.

"You have undoubtedly heard of the fate of an American schr. which was boarded off Cape Antonio, taken possession of, robbed, and burnt by the pirates. She was bound to this island—had touched at St. Thomas, where she had a German supercargo; ut on board, whose throat was cut, as well as that of the crew."

An account re-published from the Manilla paper states, that the convoy of money taken possession of by Iturbide, in Mexico, last year, (700,000 dollars,) was the principal part of the cargo of two Manilla ships, belonging to the commerce of that city, and that the news of this event spread consternation through the capital. Many families were ruined by the event, and the trade between the Philippine islands and Acapulco, by which immense fortunes had been made at Manilla, almost without exertion or capital, was put an end to forever. "The Spaniards must now, (says the Manilla paper.) devote themselves to agriculture—and the fertile port of their, till now neglected, colony, must give them what they before absurdly sought for in the mines of Mexico."

The last accounts from Newfoundland, received in England, describe that colony to be in a state of extreme distress.—Among the lower orders, it is said, there are few able to support themselves; and the members of the rich part of the community are so small that relief was impracticable. Many, it was feared, must perish for want. Meetings of the inhabitants had been held for the purpose of raising subscriptions, and the Governor had intimated to them that a sum equal to the whole raised by the colonists would be contributed by the government. Memorials have been sent to England to claim the interposition of the Legislature.

EXPLOSION OF A MINE.

A singular explosion took place on the 15th of March, about 11 miles North West from Cincinnati at a salt well situate on Taylor's Creek, a branch of the Big Miami, where generals Harrison and Findlay have perseveringly employed a number of men in search of saline springs.

They had perforated 300 feet of a rock, when the augur struck into an extensive subterraneous cavern of water; the rods plunged down several feet, and the water instantly rushed up to within 13 feet of the earth's surface, accompanied by an inflammable gas, supposed to have been carburetted hydrogen. Several men having descended with a light to extricate the rods, the gas instantly took fire, and exploded with a report so loud that it was heard at the distance of more than a mile. The men were much scorched, but no lives were lost. On the eighth day after the explosion, the gaseous ebullition altogether ceased.

The English papers announce the marriage at Gretna Green, of Mr. Clegg, trunk-maker, of Manchester, to Miss Dawson, of the same town, with a fortune of forty thousand pounds. This was a runaway match, and Mr. Clegg had so contrived it as to get twelve hours start of the lady's friends, and although pursuit was made, it was too late—the old blacksmith of Gretna had rivetted the chain.

MIRROR OF LIFE.

TO SHEW THE TRUE AGE AND BODY OF THE TIMES, ITS FORM AND PRESSURE.

A new book has been published for the benefit of English epicures, called the Cook's Oracle, from which is extracted the following specimen of exquisite humanity:

"The true lover of an oyster will have some regard for the feelings of his little favorite, and will never abandon into the mercy of a bungling operator, but will open it himself, and contrive to detach the fish from the shell so dexterously, that the oyster is hardly conscious he has been ejected from his lodgings, till he feels the teeth of the piscivorous gourmand tickling him to death."

Fifty thousand dollars in Counterfeit notes were lately found near one of the wharves in Brockville, Canada, supposed to have been lost by a person who had arrived in the stage the day previous. They consisted of one dollar bills of Canada—on the Montreal Bank, two dollar bills—one dollar on the Ontario Branch Bank, Utica—five and ten dollars on the State Bank of New-Brunswick—and hundred and five dollar bills, on the Bank of Louisiana.

Two men were committed to the jail of this village, on Monday evening last, by Judge Glover, charged with attempting to pass counterfeit money upon some people on League Island, opposite Hopkin's fishery, at Eagle Point. One of them, after being arrested, took something from his pocket and attempted to swallow; it the person who had him in custody, suspecting it to be a packet of spurious notes, seized him by the throat to force him to disgorge it, and in the scuffle, the fellow caught the person's finger in his mouth, and bit it very severely, to the bone. [Woodbury Herald.

We are informed, says the Delaware Gazette, that a gentleman, travelling some mornings since, on the road from St. George to the Red Lion Tavern, about 11 miles below Wilmington, was taken from his sulkey, robbed of about four hundred dollars, and tied to a tree near the road, from which he was released by a black man who was passing sometime afterwards.

Nature's Sport.—A remarkable calf was last week taken from a heifer owned by Mr. David Clark, of Rindge, having no less than eight legs, two bodies, one head, three tails, and a large trunk, (as the account states,) 'measuring three feet!' The owner sold the calf, we understand, for $50. The skin is now at the tanner's to undergo a partial dressing, when it will be stuffed in its true and perfect shape, and exhibited for the gratification of the public.

[Keene N. H. Sent.

A violent typhoon was experienced at Manilla, on the 17th October, in which the Ajax, of New-York, had her rudder knocked off. The China, of Salem, had her larboard chains all carried away and other damage. The Citizen, of New-York, was run foul of by a small schooner, which they cut adrift: the schooner afterwards upset, and all on board perished.

Quick Work.—Some 40 or 50 of the inhabitants of Scipio, N. Y. perceiving that their minister, the Rev. S. Mattison, was not so well accommodated with a house as he ought to be, lately went into the woods and cut down timber, with which they reared a two story frame 18 by 21, in the space of three days from their assemblihg, and without any charge.

Destructive Fire.—Twenty-seven houses and stores were destroyed by fire at Fredericksburg (Va.) on the 12th instant, supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The furniture belonging to the occupants was mostly saved, but 200 bbls. of flour and 300 sacks of salt, lying in a warehouse, were consumed,

Fire.—On Friday evening, the 12th inst. a three story brick ware-house was burnt at Baltimore, with all the property it contained. It was occupied by Clark & Kellogg, commission merchants.

Rev. Mr. Ward.—The Salem Register states, that a Calcutta paper of December 21, contains a letter from the Rev. Wm. Ward, dated at Serampore, Dec. 13, proposing the formation of a Society in Calcutta, for the benefit of Mariners who visit that port—with a view particularly to their religious instruction. He speaks in high praise of the effects of similar societies in the United States and England, which he had witnessed in his recent visit to these countries.

Boundary Line.—The Commissioners under the fifth article of the treaty of Ghent, lately in session at N. York, have disagreed in opinion, and have made separate reports, duplicates of which have been delivered to the agents of the two governments.

Early productions.—A box of ripe Strawberries was sold in the Boston market, on Wednesday week, during a snow storm, for $8. Cucumbers, upwards of eight inches in length, fresh from the vines, were exhibited the same day.

Charleston, April 12.

A Coroner's Inquest was held yesterday, at Fitzsimons' wharf, upon the body of a seaman named William Young, of Philadelphia, one of the crew of the schooner Eudori, arrived from Havana on Wednesday. It appeared that he came to his death by falling overboard, the night preceding, in a state of intoxication.

The defence of Commodore [illegible] before the Court Martial [illegible] of the United States [illegible] Boston, was concluded on Thursday last, and the Court took time to consider the testimony. The result of the proceedings will not be known until [illegible] have been submitted to the President.

China.—By an arrival at Providence, we learn that the Chinese Mandarins on the 10th of December, seized a large quantity of silks belonging to an American gentleman, and had stopped the silk trade. Whether the place where this is said to have occurred, nor the cause of the proceeding are mentioned.

Monte Video.—The inhabitants of Monte Video were lately under the necessity of raising an extraordinary contribution to distribute among the Portuguese troops who threatened to enter the place and help themselves, if the old arrearages were not immediately settled.

Perjury.—The young woman [illegible] mentioned in our paper, as having been committed for perjury at Boston, has been tried, found guilty, and sentenced to 90 days solitary confinement, and ten years hard labour.

Hard times for Lawyers.—We understand that the number of entries upon the Docket of the Court of Common Pleas of the city and county of New-York, which commenced on Monday last, did not exceed thirty.

Serampore Mission.—This mission has a type-foundery, a paper manufactory, seven teen presses in operation, and workmen of every description connected with it. It has all the varieties of type necessary to print the scriptures in every language of India.

The Bank of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and its branches, have come to the determination of curtailing its discounts with a view to restore the currency of the West.

The Frankfort Argus mentions a murder committed in that neighbourhood, by a negro girl, who, out of resentment towards her mistress, administered a quantity of Aqua Fortis to an infant entrusted to her charge.

A number of shoemakers who had entered into a combination not to work under a stipulated price, and had obstructed persons in the same trade, have been committed to prison one month in the House of Correction at Kirkdale, (Eng.) at hard labor.

A man who was in the practice of robbing a grist mill in the vicinity of Belle Air, Maryland, was laid in wait for by the miller on Saturday night, the 30th ult. When the thief had filled his bag with flour, and was about retiring, the miller ordered him to stop, adding that unless he did, he would fire on him, which he finally did as the thief was leaving the door. By the blood which flowed from him, he was traced, next morning, to a neighbouring barn. He died on the following day.

Suicide.—A Mr. Moultrop, a clothier by trade, put a period to his existence on the 24th ult. at Painsville, Ohio, by hanging himself in the open field with a rope, which he fastened to the branch of a tree.

John Lechler, the supposed murderer of his own wife and of Mrs. Haag at Lancaster, and for whose apprehension a reward of 600 dollars was offered, has been taken in Cambria county, and was at Harrisburg on the 16th inst. on his way to Lancaster.

The Roman Catholic Church in Ohio, is now completely organized, and the Rev. Dr. Fenwick has been constituted Bishop of the diocess. He has made choice of Cincinnati as his place of permanant residence.

The wife of Mr. Smalley (lately killed by lightning) has followed her husband to the grave. She was the victim of incessant grief, and has left four orphan children to deplore the untimely fate of their parents. [N. Y. Com. Adv.

The Mayor of Savannah has again ordered a quarantine upon all vessels from Baltimore, in consequence of the small pox having broken out on board the schr. Elizabeth, Delano, recently arrived there from the latter port.

Suicide.—An Englishman, named Smith, said to have possessed considerable property, is stated to have committed suicide at Cincinnati, on the 20th ult.

A bed of "English, or Peruvian Red," used as a paint, has been discovered on a farm in Corinth, at the foot of the Cayadozosseras mountains, belonging to Judge Cowles.

Enos M'Daniel, in Bourbon county, Kentucky, lately murdered a Mr. Andrew Cummings, of that place, and effected his escape without any attempt being made to bring him to justice.

A costume of Oxford Grey has been established for the Students of Harvard University, with variations to designate the classes.

General Gaines was at New Orleans on the 15th of March. He was to visit the military posts on the Red River and Arkansas.

A Concert of Sacred Music was performed by the Handelian Society, on Monday eve, to aid the funds of the Sunday School Union of the state of Maryland.

The Evening Post.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday, April 20, 1822.

It is doubtlessly known to our readers, that by the terms of the treaty of Ghent, concluded by the American and British envoys, the line of demarkation, and the boundary limits between the two governments, were to be determined and established by commissioners to be appointed for that purpose.—If their discussions should not result in an amicable arrangement of the territorial limits, an arbitration was to be submitted to, of some independant, unbiassed, and uninterested sovereignty.—The emperor of Russia has been solicited to go into an examination of the matters in contention, and to decide the differences existing between the commissioners. The opinion of the autocrat, upon that particular project has not yet been divulged, but his decision upon another branch of this arbitriment, relative to the deportation of slaves, during the late war has been promulgated, to the credit and to the advantage of the United States.—In announcing this fact, the National Intelligencer says, and very truly, that "the subject is of great importance to several of the southern states; and we hope we may soon be able to announce so agreeable a report."

TRIAL FOR PIRACY.

The decision which was given in the early part of this week in the United States District Court, sitting in this city, appears to settle the question as to the validity of all commissions issued by the Banda Oriental. Captain Burch was charged with this crime, acting under a commission from Artigas, and sailing as was stated, not to commit indiscriminate plunder as a pirate, but as a belligerent exercising the rights of war against the Portuguese, attacking only their vessels, and suffering others to pass unmolested. The jury returned a verdict of acquittal in five minutes.

THE ARTS.—We noticed in our last number but one, a fine specimen of the arts by G. Persico, exhibited in a picture of Joseph Bonaparte—we some time before informed our readers, that it was in contemplation, by a gentleman of this city, to publish a superior likeness of Napoleon, in the form of a bust, such as had not been attempted in the United States. That publication has already been uttered, and from the view we have had of it, we take it to be formed of very just proportions, and with accurate anatomical knowledge. The portrait is an interesting figure to study, and the construction of the head and neck, perfectly unique. It is, in fact, as far as it relates to sculpture, a suitable ornament for every private and professional library.

THE SLAVE TRADE.

The extinguishment or melioration of the African Slave trade, has always been a subject of the first importance with a large portion of the American people. This evil having been suffered to exist, in direct hostility to the reason and justice of all Christendom, until it had arrived to an extent at which humanity shuddered, and wept for the degrading stigma cast upon our age of civilization, has now, by the intervention of some of the kingdoms in Europe, whose subjects were most notorious in advancing this traffic, been marked out as an offence militating against the policy of the state, and laws have been enacted subjecting all parties connected in the transportation of slaves from the African coast, to the punishment of Death.—The committee in the House of Representatives in Congress, on the suppression of Slavery, have expressed their opinion that prompt and efficient measures ought to be adopted by our government, to further this great object, and not one dissenting vote was offered to a resolution attached to the report for the like effect. A difference of opinion arose, however, whether the Executive should sanction by treaty, the mutual right of search on the African coast, which the report proposed to grant to foreign powers.

THE NEW MARKET.

The Select and Common Councils, in a supplement to an ordinance passed on the 6th Feb. last, for rebuilding the Jersey Market, authorizes the city commissioners to erect the stalls in a manner more convenient for the accommodation of produce brought there, by fixing the rails permanently, and by dispensing with the boxes under the stalls, excepting opposite to each pier, for scales and weights. It further empowers them to provide temporary stands in High street, during the erection of the new edifice, for all who have heretofore supplied the market.

The Ship Thomas Scattergood, Rutter, from Canton, with a valuable cargo of goods, arrived this morning.

We have heard of an occurrence which happened in our market, early last evening, calculated to excite the sympathy of the public. A person who had been resting himself on the seat of a stall, by some mischance had his hand entangled in one of the hooks, which pierced through and through the flesh, and caused the greatest agony in the poor sufferer. From this and similar accidents, we conclude it is very unsafe to suffer the rails to remain up after market hours, as it is not unfrequent to see boys jumping from one stall to another.

Thirty-six arks, with Coal from the mines on the river Lehigh, arrived at our wharves on Thursday last. The river being entirely free from obstructions, there is reason to hope that the city will be constantly supplied with this article during the season.

Mrs. BURKE.—Our citizens are apprised that Mrs. Burke's benefit, which was postponed on account of her confinement, is to take place on Monday evening, that lady having so far recovered as to be able to give the admirers of sweet sounds a selection of pieces well adapted to her inimitable powers.

The Saturday Mails.

The Hon. John Phillips has been elected Mayor of the city of Boston. Out of 2661 votes, he had 2464.

Extract of a letter dated St. Johns, Porto Rico, April 4, 1822.

"A Danish schooner from Laguira, has been sent in here and condemned, although a demand was made for her by the Danish Government. The Privateer is on her second cruise, with orders to capture any vessel trading with ports in possession of the Patriots, without regard to nations; so Americans look out!

There is not much danger of Piracies here, as the coast is well lined with French and Danish Cruisers."

Burglary.—The office of Mr. John Martin, situated in the most public part of Providence, (R. I.) was broken into on Monday last at noon day, and $2600 in bank notes stolen therefrom. Five hundred dollars are offered for the recovery of the money.

American Manufactures.—The Boston Centinel announces for sale samples of printed silk handkerchiefs, from the dying establishment of Messrs. Barretts, Tileston & Co. of this city, which "in point of coloring, pattern and execution, have been pronounced equal, if not superior to any transatlantic fabrics of the kind."

A person by the name of John Bolton, in Warren, Herkimer county, (N. Y.) has invented a machine, by which one bushel of clover seed per hour may be cleaned, by water; or from 3 to 5 bushels per day, by horse power. The cost of the machinery, when applied to the spindle of a plaster or grist mill, is 30 or 40 dollars. A patent right has been secured.

Smoking Cigars.—A young man (a dandy we suppose) who like many of our New-York bucks, indulged himself in smoking cigars in the streets to the great annoyance of passengers, has been prosecuted by the Police at Boston, and made to pay pretty smartly for his ungentlemanly conduct.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

Walnut street.—On Wednesday evening last, Messrs. Labasse and Tatin made their second appearance here to a large and fashionable audience, in a new ballet, entitled "Jealousy in a Seraglio; Or the Generous Sultan," translated from the French, and got up under the immediate direction of Monsieur Labasse. The scenery is in a style of superior excellence, and it was uniformly well performed. Monsieur Labasse, who performed Alonzo, a Spanish Captive, was spirited, energetic and appropriate in the highest degree. Monsieur Tatin was very little inferior to him, the only fault which the critic could notice, was rather too much action. We should be guilty of a great injustice, did we neglect to notice the excellence of Mrs. H. Wallack, who convinced us she had studied action minutely; her whole performance was highly animated and appropriate—it was at once graceful, interesting and correct; the Pas de deux with Monsieur Labasse was truly elegant, we never witnessed such grace and action.

Mrs. Burke's benefit which has been deferred on account of indisposition, is announced for Monday evening, when will be presented the much admired drama of Rob Roy Macgregor, or Auld Lang Syne, after which will be introduced 'Soldier Rest,' a celebrated Polacca, composed by Mr. Clifton, by Mrs. Burke—Song, 'Columbia forever,' Mr. Nicols—Hunting Song, 'The Morning's Dawn,' by Mrs. Burke.—The evenings entertainment to conclude with the farce of High Life below Stairs.—Theatre positively to close on Tuesday.

Prune Street.—The performances announced for this evening, consist of a new dramatic Romance, written by Mr. Stone, called Montrano, or, who's the Traitor? we understand the representation of this piece met with unbounded applause in Boston, and is now brought forward, for the first time on this stage for the benefit of Mr. Stone; after which the melo-drama of the Snow Storm. On Monday Richard the Third, with the Tragedy of Tragedies, or the Life and Death of Tom Thumb.

Reading.—The Theatre still continues to attract the attention of the public, and Messrs. Williams and Herbert, the managers, use every exertion to merit a continuance of patronage.

New-York.—Mr. Phillips closed his engagement on Monday last, as Count Almaviva, in the opera of the Barber of Seville. A new melo drama called the Rose of Arragon, was represented on Thursday eve. Mr. West's company of Equestrians are still located in this city.

Boston.—A celebrated comedy called Know your own Mind, written by A. Murphy, Esq. and the farce of Turn Out, were the performances on Monday night, for the benefit of Mrs. Drummond—on which occasion she personated the characters of Lady Bell and Marian Ramsay.

Baltimore.—Mr Dwyer, the comedian, whose well known talents has been distinguished by a liberal patronage in various parts of the U. States, gave lectures on Elocution, at Concert Hall, on the evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday last.

Charleston.—On the 10th inst. was performed the tragedy of Wallace, the Hero of Scotland, with the Review, or the Wags of Windsor—Loony M'Twolter by Mr Barnard, being his first appearance in Charleston.

Foreign.—A new tragedy is forthcoming in London, to be entitled, "the Martyr," from the pen of Mr. Milman. Another tragedy is also in great forwardness for the press, called "the Weird Wanderer of Jutland," by the Hon. W. Herbert.

COMMUNICATION.

P. Canfield has the pleasure of informing the public, that No. 3272, combination 13-15-27, which drew the Capital prize of $1500 in the 9d class New Series Lottery, and sold at his office, was held by John Walker, Esq. Duels.—The Boston Centinel, in noticing the late duel at Port Mahon, in which midshipman Worthington was killed, says, "we have seen other letters from Port Mahon, not only authenticating this fact, but stating further, that two other meetings took place on the same day, between the midshipmen engaged in the affair which caused the death of young Worthington. One of them was settled without the exposure of life, and the other after exchanging one fire, which proved ineffectual. A fourth meeting was expected, but one of the parties was arrested, and is to be tried by a court martial."

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The communication signed Y. has been received. The writer's allusions are so free and pointed that, to give them publicity, we must convict ourselves; and we hope, as he justly observes, "there is no period in the existence of any individual when he is free from vanity," this will be with him, a reasonable excuse on our part for not inserting them, though we do not deny their correctness.

"The Mechanic," No. 2, will be given in our next.

In Chancery of New-Jersey.

Between Thomas M. Stout, Complainant, And Edward Rawson, Defendant } On Bill to foreclose, &c. April 4th, 1822.

It appearing to the Court that process of subpœna to appear, &c. hath issued against the above named defendant, and that Edward Rawson, the above named defendant, hath not entered his appearance to be entered as, according to the rules of this court, the same ought to have been entered in case such process had been duly served; and it also appearing by affidavit to the satisfaction of the Chancellor, that the said Edward Rawson resides out of this state, and in the state of Maryland—upon opening the matter, this day, to the Court, by William R. Jeffers, Solicitor, and of Counsel with the complainant, the Chancellor doth order and direct the said Edward Rawson, to appear, plead, answer, or demur to the Complainant's bill of complaint in this cause, on or before the second Tuesday of July next, and in case he shall fail so to do, the Complainant's bill shall be taken as confessed against him, and thereupon such decree shall be made as the Chancellor shall think equitable. And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order shall be published within twenty days after the date hereof in the Salem Messenger, a newspaper printed and published in Salem, in this state, for the space of six weeks successively, once at least in each week, and also in a newspaper printed and published in the state of Pennsylvania, within twenty days, for four weeks successively, once at least in each week. Oyster Rendezvous and Chop House.

NEW ARRANGEMENT.

THE subscriber in tendering his thanks for the liberal patronage which has been heretofore extended to him, respectfully informs his friends and the community generally, that he has re-opened his establishment at No. 104 LIBRARY STREET, immediately facing the United States' Bank, and that he has annexed to his Hotel an Oyster Rendezvous.

Gentlemen can be supplied with unusual dispatch at any hour through the day, with the first rate Oysters dressed to suit their wishes; as in the Chop House, with Beefsteaks, Veal Cutlets, and a variety of poultry; and choice game and with any other article in the culinary line, which they may be disposed to prefer. The contiguity of the Banks, Coffee-House and public offices, renders his establishment unusually accommodating to persons having business at either, and he solicits a continuance of their former favours.

The Bar is abundantly supplied with liquors and refreshments, and there will be constantly on hand Genuine old Irish Whisky, for Hot Punch.

EPIGRAM.

As a wag at a ball, to a nymph on each arm,
Alternately turning, and thinking to charm,
Exclaim'd in these words, of which Quin was the giver—
"You are my gizzard, my dear—and my love you're my liver!"
"Alas!" cried the fair on his left, "in what use?"
"For you never are either serv'd up with a goose!"

[For the Saturday Evening Post.]

ENIGMA.

ADDRESSED TO A TOPER.

I take the liberty of sending the servant whom I mentioned the other day, and think, before you retain him you should know something of his family and qualities. His birth was certainly low, and he was brought up among poor people; a little polishing was bestowed upon him, which to his credit he took well; he is sharp, has bright parts, and I have some reason to believe his temper is good. He has undergone some severe trials previous to his entering my service, which have been an advantage to him. He has some skill in drawing, and if you should employ him in that way, he may prove an hour's amusement to you and your friends. He will be useful to your sideboard; yet, I must confess, if you cannot contrive to keep liquor from him, his head will be frequently turned; though, upon such an occasion, I must do him the justice to say, I never knew him to give offence, or in any single instance destroy his trust. You may rely on his never repeating any thing that passes in the family, out of doors. I must not anticipate your opinion of him, and will only add, I should not have parted with his services, but for the pleasure of recommending him to you. INTERPRETATIS.

News of the day.—When common-place acquaintance meet in the street, and after 'How do you do?'—'Very well, thank you, how are you?'—and 'Any thing new to-day?' 'No! every thing quite flat. Nothing stirring that I hear'—a pause ensues, which is broken only when one of the parties has wisdom enough to tell his friend, that we have had confounded wet weather—'Very wet, indeed.' 'This is a new fashioned winter—no frost—no snow.' 'Well, a mild winter makes a fat church yard. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good—Coffin makers and sextons must live.' 'Certainly. It is no more than fair.' "Good morning." "Good morning to you—I must hurry home, or I shall get wet."

CRACKING A JOKE.

The late eloquent and witty Curran, happening one day to see a little animal of a tribe which politeness forbids us to name, crawling on the wig of a brother counsellor, communicated the circumstance in a whisper. His learned brother exclaimed, "Poo! Poo! it is only a joke." "A joke," rejoined Curran, "well, if you have many more such jokes, the sooner you begin to crack them the better."

Beau Nash was one evening employed in collecting money for the Bath Hospital.—A Lady entered who was more remarkable for her wit than her charity, and not being able to pass by him unobserved, she gave him a pat with her fan, and said, "You must put down a trifle for me, Nash, for I have no money in my pocket." "Yes, madam, says he, that I will with pleasure if your Grace will tell me when to stop;" then taking a handful of guineas out of his pocket, he began to tell them into his white hat, one two, three, four, five. "Hold, hold, (says the duchess) consider what you are about." "Consider your rank and fortune, madam," (says Nash,) and continued telling six, seven, eight, nine, ten. Here the duchess called again, and seemed angry.—"Pray compose yourself, madam," cried Nash, "and dont interrupt the work of charity;" eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen. Here the duchess stormed, and caught hold of his hand. "Peace, madam," says Nash, "you shall have your name written in letters of gold, madam; and upon the front of the building, madam; sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty. "I won't pay a farthing more," says the duchess, "Charity hides a multitude of sins," replies Nash; twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five.—"Nash," says she, "I protest you frighten me out of my wits. L—d! I shall die!" "Madam you will never die with doing good; and if you should it would be better for you," answered Nash, and was about to proceed, but perceiving her grace had lost all patience, a parley ensued; when he, after much altercation, agreed to stop his hand and compound with her grace for thirty guineas. The duchess, however, seemed displeased the whole evening, and when he came to the table where she was playing, bid him "stand further, an ugly devil, for she hated the sight of him." But her grace afterwards, having a run of good luck called Nash to her: "Come, (says she,) I will be friends with you, though you are a fool, and to let you see I am not angry, there are ten guineas more for your charity."

In some villages in Kent, (Eng.) when a man is known to have abused his wife, it is usual to strew chaff before his door, when the joke runs through the town that such a man was thrashing last night, as the chaff was seen in front of his house. Such notoriety is said to be a more wholesome restraint on bad husbands than any legal enactment.

Receipt to cleanse the teeth and improve the breath.—To four ounces of fresh prepared lime water, add one drachm Peruvian bark, and wash the teeth with the water in the morning before breakfast, and after supper. It will effectually destroy the [illegible] the teeth, and remove the offensive [illegible] arising from those decayed.

In some of the country papers in this state, we perceive a singular mode of preventing horse stealing. Some thirty or forty citizens sign an advertisement, beginning thus: "Horse thieves take notice, we the subscribers have united in a company for your detection." If they do not take the hint after this, there is no virtue in a newspaper notice.—Nat. Adv.

It appears that our country is prolific in Marble. There are, the Pennsylvania black Marble, the Stockbridge white, of which the New York City Hall is built; the verd antique, richly veined with green; the New Haven, similar in appearance; the Potomac, a beautiful composition of pebbles of various shades, of which the columns of the capitol at Washington are made; the common veined black and white; the Cherry Valley of a dark gray colour; the Vermont, of a beautiful dove colour, &c.

CARRIAGES AND GIGS.

THE SUBSCRIBER respectfully tenders his thanks for the patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon him, and apprizes his friends and the public that his establishment has recently been improved, and augmented to an extent which enables him to supply the calls of his customers at the most immediate notice. His carriages are not only fitted up in an elegant manner, but constructed and furnished so as to be at once comfortable and commodious—his principal care having been to accommodate them to the several seasons of the year. In the selection of his coachmen he has been particularly careful, that they should be sober and skilful, and that their appearance should correspond with the equipage. Despatch, diligence and attention, will be constantly given to those who honour him with their commands. The dimensions of his stable being very extensive, he is willing to receive Horses at Livery.

He has provided his establishment with a very elegant HEARSE FOR FUNERALS, with Horses and Furniture corresponding with the Vehicle and its purpose.

Expresses sent to any part of the country at any hour.

BALM OF COLUMBIA,

An important recent Chemical discovery.

THE ladies and gentlemen of this city and elsewhere, are respectfully informed, that John Oldridge has fortunately discovered, by the power of chemistry, the grand desideratum of preventing Hair from falling off in FORTY-EIGHT HOURS. This balm will most absolutely, in the course of a short time, make the Hair grow healthy and thick. J. O. is well aware that many fraudulent and impositious Oils, &c have been imposed on the public, and therefore prejudice will be severe against his discovery, until trial shall convince his patrons that such a thing exists in nature as a certain preventative against the loss of hair. This valuable balm will cause whiskers and beards to grow rapidly. No danger need be apprehended to the human system by the application of this capillary restorative. The public may rest assured that it helps nature, and is perfectly harmless.

Persons desirous of becoming agents for the sale of the Balm of Columbia, will please address the proprietor by letter, (post paid,) with a suitable reference.

Prepared and sold, at $1 a pint, or 50 cents for a half pint bottle, by JOHN OLDRIDGE, No. 55½ South Front street, and at No. 11 North Fourth street, Philadelphia.

RECOMMENDATION.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby certify, that we have, in various cases, used the Balm of Columbia, lately discovered by John Oldridge, of Philadelphia, and have found it highly serviceable not only as a preventative against the falling off of hair, but also as a restorative. We, therefore, feel assured of its excellence, and consider it valuable and well worthy the attention of the public. In testimony whereof, we have added our respective signatures, and given it our warmest recommendation.

Abraham A. Robinson, 55 South Front street.
Cromwell French, 1 Taylor's alley, S. Front st.
John Fink, Plumb street, between 3d and 4th.
John Cook, 35 Penn street.

The proprietor is in possession of many other respectable certificates, which he does not deem necessary to publish, but invites the public to call and see them. march 30—tf

The Novelist's Library, Vol. I.

JUST published, by HICKMAN & HAZZARD, No. 121 Chesnut street, THE NOVELIST'S LIBRARY, Vol. I. containing the History of Nourjahad, by Mrs. F. Sheridan, with a Biographical Preface, and embellished with a handsome frontispiece. Price to subscribers, 50 cts. per vol. sewed—to non-subscribers, 62½ cts. per vol.

Our friends and the public are respectfully informed, that we intend to publish, in a neat and uniform manner, two editions 32mo. and 8vo. vols. of the most popular tales, among which are, Johnson's Rasselas, Voltaire's Zadig, Almoran and Hamet, Tales of the Castle, Fairy Tales, &c. Each work to be embellished with an elegant frontispiece.

The object in printing two editions, is to offer a choice of two sizes—each will contain the same matter. Some will prefer the 32mo. on account of its being more portable, others the 8vo. for being in fewer volumes. march 2—6w
